

Understanding the .mobi Domain ...

and How It Will Finally Make the Internet Mobile

The world is growing more and more mobile every day

- Four mobile phones sold to every one PC today
- 25% of paid Internet subscribers use their mobile phone as their primary access (IPSOS)
- 1.3B people will connect via mobile Internet phones by 2008 (IDC)
- Mobile data services estimated at $112B by 2008

Clear trends are emerging

- Mobile internet will be bigger and have more reach than fixed Internet
- Phone has payment mechanism built in
- i-Mode makes more money than Google, Yahoo, eBay, Amazon and AOL combined
- In mobile, US is follower rather than leader
  - 93% of mobile internet users are in non-us markets

Mobile consumers expect a good Internet experience

- Convenient

“I am walking around the city. I can’t go back home to my PC. I need to find a price or directions.”

- Easily Discoverable

“Wow. I turned on my phone and I got online just as easily as I do every day at home. It was a good experience.”

- Trust

“The internet on my mobile works the same every time and costs what I expect it to cost for the convenience.”

The discovery problem

- Users have no way to know whether a site will work or not
  - Only way is to try
  - This results in expensive, time-consuming mistakes
- Resulting poor experience is disincentive to try mobile browsing again
- End-of-month “sticker shock” when the user gets bill is a second disincentive
  - “All you can eat” model for mobile data is rare on a global basis

Taking the PC-based internet to the mobile has not worked well to date

- Study by leading mobile carrier found that the biggest barriers to use are:
  - Too expensive
  - Poor/inappropriate content
  - Slow access
  - Logins difficult
  - Navigation difficult

Reasons for Not Using Data Service

What doesn't work ...

- Ill-fitting graphics
- Slow access
- Difficult navigation
- Frames
- Complex graphics

... and what does works.

- Mobility context specific, location content specific
- Immediate access
- Easy navigation
- Clean pages, no frames, simple graphics
- Sharply defined usage objectives

How can the industry do this?

- Overcome key inhibitors
  - Promote device-independent standards
  - Adopt best practices across industry
  - Adopt style guides that create common experience across networks and devices
  - Enable discoverability of quality mobile content
  - Create common trustmark for consumer mobile experience

.mobi: Internet Made Mobile

- .mobi is the first and only Internet address specifically designed for the mobile. It works on any phone on any network anywhere in the world.
  - myname.mobi or myname@name.mobi
- dotMobi provides developer tools, education and certification for mobile content and messaging.
- .mobi tells consumers:

This works on my mobile.

.mobi's underlying technology guarantees the Internet works on your mobile every time

- Style guides for web development, mobile messaging, device compliance and search provide the core technology
- .mobi is built on open standards and contributions from investor companies.
  - Follows W3C's Mobile Web Initiative Best Practices
    - dotMobi is a founding member and contributor
- Style guides are enforced to guarantee the .mobi trustmark
  - .mobi domains can be turned off

.mobi Style Guide for Web Developers

Three Mandatory Rules

Highly-Recommended
Best Practices

.mobi Style Guide for Web Developers

- W3C Mobile Web “Best Practice Guide” plus dotMobi guidelines
  - 1. XHTML mobile profile
  - 2. Second level domain site
  - 3. No frames, no pop-ups, no auto-refresh
  - URLs for country-specific sites
  - Clean navigation, appropriate graphics, minimal scrolling
  - No embedded objects, no tables
  - Minimal keystrokes

Core value propositions

Consumers

- .mobi: the domain that says “internet made mobile”
- Search
  - Prioritizes websites optimised for mobile
  - Renders sites for mobile devices
- Content
  - Sites made for mobile internet
  - Designed for mobile situations
- Handsets made for mobile internet
  - Optimised navigation
  - Easy input of URLs
  - Ready to use or easy to update

Mobile Operators

- Increase customer satisfaction
  - Re-engage customers in mobile internet with positive user experience
  - Provide augmentation to walled garden approach and its limited success
- Increase revenue through more packet data traffic and higher mobile data ARPU for 2.5G and 3G
- Broad operator support will motivate content providers to invest, further increasing usage
- Increase customer loyalty by owning the customer journey and OWN their online identity

Content Providers

- Allows content and service providers to create new Internet-based services for mobile customers
- Search services will better recognize and catalogue .mobi sites increasing:
  - result quality
  - user satisfaction
  - site traffic

The screenshot shows a Microsoft website with a header containing the .mobi logo and a search bar. A red circle highlights the .mobi logo in the address bar. The main content area features a photograph of two people working at a desk, with text overlaying it: "Are your people ready?". Below the image, there are sections for "Product Families" (Windows, Office, etc.), "Product Resources" (Downloads, Microsoft Update, etc.), and "Countries & Regions". At the bottom, there are "Popular Downloads" (Windows Defender, MSN Messenger) and "Popular Searches" (Internet Explorer, Media Player). There are also sections for "Popular Destinations" categorized by location: "for your home" (At Home, Windows XP, Clip Art), "for your job" (At Work, Office 2003 Editions, Templates), and "for your organization" (Business & Industry, Volume Licensing, Small Business Center, Microsoft Partners). Navigation links at the bottom include Manage Your Profile, Contact Us, Careers, Legal, Terms of Use, Trademarks, and Privacy Statement.
